

Christopher Sutton

Owner and Director, Easy Ear Training

Christopher Sutton, owner and director of UK based Easy Ear Training Ltd. has experience in music that runs deep. Born and raised in London, Sutton began his musical education at an early age, studying and playing saxophone, piano, electric guitar and singing in choir and a barbershop quartet in school. While following his passion for all things musical, Sutton also nurtured an interest in computers and how they worked.

Graduating with an honors degree in Computer Science from Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, followed by a Masters Degree in Digital Music at the University of London, Sutton has combined his two passions into a career that sees him pioneering products to match the needs and demands of today's musicians.

Sutton began work in 2006 for Centre For Digital Music, developing an automatic playlist generation tool for iTunes called SoundBite. His work at the Centre For Digital Music has led him to take his education and innate abilities and found Easy Ear Training in 2009, developing RelativePitch for the iPhone, an app that teaches ear training to musicians and audio professionals. What began as a labor of love has quickly become the premier music training app in the Apple App Store, featured for two weeks in November 2009. Fusing his knowledge and dreams, Sutton has fulfilled a void in the music software world and in the process pioneered a new era in ear training for serious musicians and audio professionals.

Determined to provide a core resource for musicians, Sutton has also launched a website at www.EasyEarTraining.com that is a source of education as well as a repository of articles, tips and reviews of music products, as well as providing a forum for consumers to discuss all aspects of music training.

With 6 years of training behind him, and boundless enthusiasm Sutton is sure to be one of the industry leaders in providing high-quality, accessible training products to the music community.
